The vineyards of Bordeaux

Often hailed as the wine capital of the World, Bordeaux is nestled along the Garonne River in southwestern France. Renowned for its prestigious vineyards, Bordeaux boasts a rich history dating back centuries in winemaking.

4 major regions

OF WINE PRODUCING IN BORDEAUX

The region's temperate maritime climate, diverse terroir, and centuries of expertise have made it a global leader in producing some of the finest wines known to connoisseurs.

Click on the regions to start your trip!

Pessac Léognan

Situated in the Graves region, Pessac-Léognan is revered for its exceptional red and white wines. The gravelly and sandy soils, combined with a temperate maritime climate, create the perfect conditions for cultivating Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, and Sauvignon Blanc grapes. Pessac-Léognan reds are known for their robust structure, while the whites exhibit freshness, minerality, and citrus notes.

Saint-Émilion

Nestled on the right bank of the Dordogne River, Saint-Émilion is distinguished for its merlot-dominant blends, producing velvety and approachable wines. The region's limestone and clay soils, coupled with a continental climate, create a favorable environment for cultivating Merlot, Cabernet Franc, and Cabernet Sauvignon grapes. Saint-Émilion wines are often characterized by their ripe fruit flavours, supple tannins, and nuances of plum, cherry, and spice.
